For generations, the people of southeast Louisiana have lived off the waters that surround them. A drive along the scenic LA 22-51 Southern Swamps Byway offers visitors a look at the natural beauty inherent in the state's bayous, marshes and wetlands. It's a place where alligators and turtles slip quietly in and out of the water, and time almost seems to stand still. Along the route are charming small towns ideal for a stroll, and plenty of great places to eat.
